Are Bulk Botanicals Right for Me?

- Do I enjoy working with flowers?
- Do I have at least 6 free hours the day before my wedding? Or do I feel comfortable delegating the flowers to a friend or family member who does?
- Do I have friends and family who can support me with the potential stress of a large DIY project the day before my wedding?
- Do I want to travel the day before my wedding to pick up my flowers?
- Do I have a good place to store my flowers -- cool, dark, and away from pets and children?
- Is there a friend or family member I can trust to bring my DIY flowers to the venue and set up all the centerpieces the day of the wedding?
- Do I have a very specific style in mind for my flowers, and will I be frustrated or disappointed if I'm not able to create it at the last minute?
- Do I want to buy all the vases and other containers for the flowers myself?
- Do I have special floral snips (not regular scissors) for working with flowers? If not, do I want to buy these?
- Do I want to buy the special tools needed (floral glue, floral tape, ribbon, pins, etc.) to create intricate items like corsages, bouquets, and boutonnieres?
- Do I have a friend or family member who can clean up the flowers and take them away from the venue after the wedding is over?
